Volume Two: Issue Fifty nine

April/May, 2011

Light travels to Earth from the Sun in 8 minutes... What does this mean in relation to human response capabilities?

From the Editor

Welcome All,

Curiosity, wonder, intrigue, humility – these are all WOW factors to be experienced each and every day.

This issue queries the internal and personal wonder at the order of things in the article and in Michael Corcoran's A Chimera.

In Current Events and Patrick's commentary we may even ponder the organized complexity of matter – one can only be humbled by the influence, impact and beauty on display in our lifetime. Of course it is reminded to one and all to be vigilant, awake and aware of what is going on in our universe on a daily basis.

Finally we are advertising upcoming courses: Carol Holding is running Heart and Mind in Darwin – this starts very soon so please respond now if attending; and Patrick is running WOW workshops in Johannesburg and Cape Town as well as a Residential somewhere in RSA all in June.

Patrick is also available for one on one private sessions: contact Patrick S. for Cape Town and Verena for Johannesburg (their phone numbers can be found on the brochure).

It is a packed issue... please take time to enjoy!

Connectedness and Currency...

by Janet Corbett

I recently watched, or was that listened to, a video sent to me of David Sereda, water filmmaker and mystic ecologist. It was sent with a noted suggestion and recommendation from John Lee who spent several years studying homeopathy as well as being a fellow student of metaphysics for many years.

I sometimes wonder the order of things... curiosity and wonder seems to attract a worthy body of work that enables clarity and new knowledge to behold. And this becomes a platform for what's next. It has been a strong feeling often that there is an order that cannot be predicted. With one's focus and knowledge intact, oftentimes something comes along and makes it possible to take what is known to a new level. It is particularly humbling to connect with the work of talented and intelligent beings, whose business is to share what they know, without need of validation or glory.

In this particular instance, David's focus embellishes, enhances and takes to another level, the visual work of Masaru Emoto and the DVD, Water the Great Mystery. Something that captured my imagination was the research undertaken that recorded the sound of the sun, and other planets and exposing water to that sound. Perhaps though, it depends upon the order in which one is introduced or where one's focus may currently be. I found it to be fascinating and for anyone interested the link to this series of videos is available at the end of this essay.

The curiosity emerging from the above for the purpose here is not about the content, rather an interest in the connectedness and order that makes it possible to set in motion an accelerated growth that has no links with belief or choice.

I cannot paint as vivid a picture of this kind of freedom in growth as Johan has here in this poem he wrote on April 4, 2011 called Encurrency the Vital.

*Encurrent the Vital and Delicious Stop the Borg-like Memes that send message-answers
Embark on Journey Metaphors
Reconnect the inter-organising Principles Find a goodsome whole intent that inter-harmonises with all nested systems ecologies of your living from the small, to the large make it fit, make it valid, make it dance, make it free-er.
It - Life - wants to dance with uncertain, open, vital, delicious process becoming, always in and with the unknown*

yet older non-currency bearing concepts and mind-trajects or (no currency) mindless repetitions get in the way.

So, update your currents, give it currency, encurrent and revitalise!

It's never too late to dance

Inspiration signifies that the creations were produced through an impulse of inspiration. Who among the great earthly artists and sculptors, after creating their works in an impulse of inspiration, will dare attempt to explain how they held their brush, what they were thinking or where they were standing — these were not the kinds of things they paid attention to, absorbed as they were so completely in their work.

Let's consider for the purposes here that currency* means the current nature of ideas, or of the theory behind the current life being lived... in other words a life in its current state of flow, a life designed by perhaps passion and most definitely a seeded belief in something.

And let's consider the connectedness one may discover and be humbled by to relate more to what belongs to assist what next rather than to the similarities one might expect to experience in one's current ebb and flow. In other words an opportunity for knowingness to expand.

Call it magic, call it the dance of life, call it whatever one chooses... it seems that oftentimes life appears to be made up of a series of fractured or unrelated moments that are actually a part of one's own great symphony. These are WOW moments and they extend an opportunity to the one who sees, to realize their connectedness with all there is.

*Johan has provided some definitions of currency... (adjectives & nouns) condition of flowing; to run; current; sense of a flow; the currency of ideas; money: a system of money, or the bills and coins themselves; acceptance of idea or term: widespread acceptance or use of an idea, theory, word, or phrase; circulation: the transmitting of something, especially money, from person to person; time when something is current: the period of time during which something is current; existing now: happening, existing, in force or in charge at the present; valid: accepted as legally or systemically valid; presently accepted: widely known, accepted, or believed ('the theory is no longer current'); finance up-to-date with payments: having made all the payments required for the present time; flow of; stream; flow of electric charge: the flow of electricity through a cable, wire, or other conductor; rate of flow - of electricity; tendency: a trend or tendency (going against the current and moving out of the city upstate).

Old French 'corant' - present participle of courre "run"; also links to koerant, krant (or news, newspaper - that provide reflections and interpretation of current events).

Latin 'currere' - used in curriculum vitae, curriculum - flow or structure of a project of learning, training or education (of life).

[The above can also be brought into relation with meaning, coherence, belonging and integrity - of resonance, process, exchange, transaction, identity, becoming, & undoing]

'It's only words, and words are all I have to take your heart away.' So sang the Bee Gees, many moons ago. If you analyse the lyric to this song, you can't be immediately sure whether the Bee Gees were saying that words are powerful or that they are not. But then, perhaps the ambiguity was intentional. That's the thing about words. We just never know what impact we're going to have. They can affect us deeply, they can go right into our hearts or right over our heads. Just to be on the safe side, pick your words with care.

Poet's Corner...

A CHIMERA

by Michael Corcoran

Whenever I fear I chain myself
To a chimera made of mist
And let it lead me where it wills
Deeper into its midst.

It tightens its grip
On my fettered limbs
And drags me to its den
To crush the breath of life from me
So I live only by its whim.

But when I see that chimera
As a thing of thought and mist
It shatters into shards of light
That show me paths of great delight
Where I might walk in peace.

My heart becomes like gossamer
As light as thistle down
And filled with tranquil consciousness
I stride into the day
And gently tread the clearer path
Where sunlight shows the way.

'It's only words, and words are all I have to take your heart away.'
I was surprised to read that if I am looking at tree and call it "tree" in English or look at the same tree and call it
"tree" in Russian, my experience of tree is different.

Then I thought about it and I know it is true. Isn't it strange? Doesn't it make life amazing?

Sveta Veremeenko (her response to the previous quote)

Customer: Your left or my left?

Tech Support: Hello. How may I help you?

Male Customer: Hi... I can't print.

Tech Support: Would you click on 'START' for me and . . .

Customer: Listen pal; don't start getting technical on me. I'm not Bill Gates!

Customer: Good afternoon, this is Martha. I can't print. Every time I try, it says . . . 'CAN'T FIND PRINTER'. I even lifted the printer and placed it in front of the monitor, but the computer still says it can't find it!

Customer: I have problems printing in red.

Tech Support: Do you have a colour printer?

Customer: Aaaah ... thank you.

Customer: My keyboard is not working anymore.

Tech Support: Are you sure your keyboard is plugged into the computer?

Customer: No. I can't get behind the computer.

Tech Support: Pick up your keyboard and take ten steps backwards.

Customer: Okay.

Tech Support: Did the keyboard come with you?

Customer: Yes.

Tech Support: That means the keyboard is not plugged in. Is there another keyboard?

Customer: Yes, there's another one here. Wait a moment please... Ah, that one does work. Thanks.

Tech Support: Your password is the small letter 'a' as in apple, a capital letter 'V' as in Victor, and the number '7'

Customer: Is that '7' in capital letters?

Customer: I can't get on the internet.

Tech Support: Are you absolutely sure you used the correct password?

Customer: Yes, I'm sure. I saw my co-worker do it.

Tech Support: Can you tell me what the password was?

Customer: Five dots.

Customer: I have a huge problem! My friend has placed a screen saver on my computer . . . but, every time I move my mouse, it disappears.

A woman customer called the Canon help desk because she had a problem with her printer...

Tech Support: Are you running it under windows?

Customer: No, my desk is next to the door, but that is a good point. The man sitting next to me is by a window, and his printer is working fine!

The real art of conversation is not only to say the right thing in the right place, but also to leave unsaid the wrong thing at the tempting moment.

Postcards from Earth by Lorraine Davies

Such a gift from a student honouring her teacher.

I finished travelling Lorraine's Journey today and I recommend Postcard from Earth to all of Patrick's students – if you have not read it, I can assure all of you that you will surely gain more insights into his courses and his raison d'être.

It is highly readable – Lorraine's turn of phrase is magnificent, her command of the English language sucks you in and you are travelling with her through all the countless emotions that we all experience when we are trying to awaken our consciousness to the love that is within us for all to behold.

Patrick's way is unique as you can see from your own journey's trials and tribulations – Lorraine has captured the method of his madness as he impeccably and ruthlessly guides us ever so slowly and sometimes painstakingly and, sometimes hilariously towards achieving our own inner wisdom.

Laugh and cry – it is all good.

Asteroid 2005 YU55 and Comet Elenin

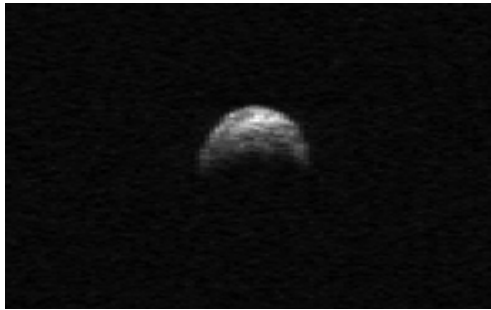

by Mitch Battros

Two celestial orbs, one comet - one asteroid, which are large and close, have trajectories which have some concerned over the consequences of a gravitational tug, while others suggest a possible collision.

After a while you learn the subtle difference between holding a hand and chaining a soul,
and you learn that love doesn't mean leaning and company doesn't mean security, and you begin to learn that kisses aren't contracts and presents aren't promises, and you begin to accept your defeats with your head up and your eyes ahead, with the grace of a woman,
not the grief of a child,
and you learn to build all of your roads on today because tomorrow's ground is too uncertain for plans,
and futures have a way of falling down in midflight.
After a while you learn that even sunshine burns
if you get too much.
So you plant your own garden and decorate your own soul, instead of waiting for someone to bring you flowers.
And you learn that
you really can endure...
That you really do have worth.
And you learn and you
learn...
With every goodbye you
learn.

The dates of the two flybys are relatively close. Asteroid 2005 YU55 closest approach is November 8 2011. Comet Elenin closest approach is October 16 2011. This would suggest any sort of negative consequence would occur prior to their closest approach to Earth.

Asteroid 2005 YU55 does indeed come within the definition of a "possible hazard", making its closest approach "within" the Earth-Moon orbit. However, Comet Elenin will be keeping its trajectory some 35 million kilometers (22 million miles) from us.

Size Does Matter: The approximate diameter of Asteroid 2005 YU55 is 400 meters [1,300 feet]. The diameter of Comet Elenin is yet known, but the average comet core (or nucleus) is between 10 kilometres [32,808 feet].

Update on Asteroid 2005 YU55 and Comet 'Elenin'

After taking a closer analysis, I can find no evidence suggesting any form of danger between Asteroid 2005 YU55 and Comet 'Elenin'. However, there is some concern of what might occur with 2005 YU55 coming into a near Earth orbit in November of this year.

They say, 'If you want to know your destiny, you should first know yourself'.

Not as easy as it sounds. When you truly know yourself, you will realise that, ultimately, you are just a temporary manifestation of the eternal. Your inner being is inextricably interconnected with the rest of the universe. Your 'self' implies individuality, an illusory concept.

Your destiny is to merge with the great source of love, which is all creation.

The Leonid meteor shower begins Nov. 13th and is expected to peak on Nov. 19th. Historically, the Leonids have produced some of the greatest meteor storms in history, with average rates of over 500 meteors per hour.

There has been some talk asking the question if it would be possible for 2005 YU55 to come in contact with a meteor during the November shower. So far, bets are favouring no collision giving it somewhere around a 10% chance on the high end.

Light travels to Earth from...

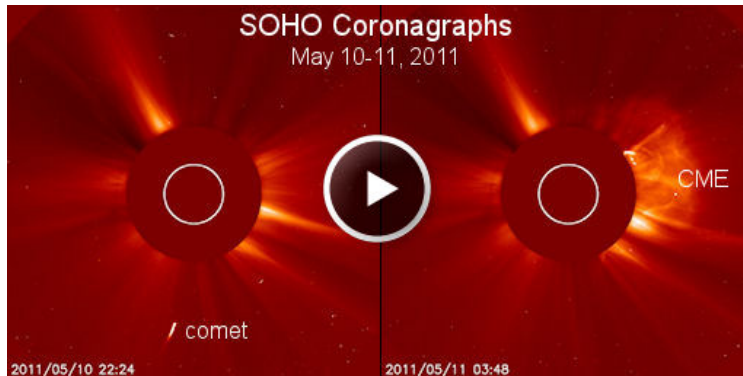

Sun... takes 8 light minutes
 Mercury... takes 6 light minutes
 Venus... takes 4 light minutes
 Moon... takes 1.2 light second Mars... takes 30 light minutes
 Jupiter... takes 1 light hours
 Saturn... takes 3 light hours
 Uranus... takes 6 light hours
 Neptune... takes 8 light hours

*Nearest Star called Proxima Centauri takes 4.2 light years
 *Nearest Galaxy called Andromeda Galaxy takes 2.2 million light years or equal to 21 Quintillion miles away TO REACH Earth.

When we allow the restricted maps of reality which are inculcated into us as truth to operate upon our lives, we find at the very last only hopelessness and despair. Those maps are dead structures of thought and have no living reality. When we plumb their depths we find shallow emptiness, which will fill us with the only thing it can: despair, up until now.

COMET AND CME: A comet dove into the sun on May 11th and seemed to trigger a massive eruption--emphasis on seemed. Watch the movie, then scroll down for further discussion.

A comet goes in; a CME comes out. Coincidence? Probably, yes, the sequence was coincidental. The comet disintegrated as much as a million kilometers above the stellar surface. There's no known way that the wispy, vaporous remains of a relatively lightweight comet could cause a billion-ton cloud of hot plasma to fly away from the sun at 400 km/s (the observed speed of the CME). Moreover, NASA's Solar Dynamics Observatory photographed the eruption that did propel the CME into space. There's no comet in the field of view of this must-see movie.

Bonus: The bright comet pictured above had a dim companion. Can you find it?

LUCKY DAY: Friday the 13th must be a lucky day. Just look how it began in Australia with a lovely triangle of planets beaming through the morning twilight:

"We had pristine conditions here on the Northern Beaches of Sydney, which allowed me to observe and photograph Venus, Jupiter, and Mercury rising above the Pacific Ocean," reports Geoff Sims. "The planets were even bright enough to cast reflections on the water, similar to those of a crescent Moon."

The Roy Process - Radioactive Waste Neutralization

Dr. Radha R. Roy, Professor Emeritus, Nuclear Physics, Arizona State University

The problem of radioactive waste disposal is the paramount environmental issue of our time. There is already much irretrievable radioactive pollution worldwide that will plague the earth's biosphere for millennia to come and threatens the gene pool of thousands of future generations. This website offers information ABOUT a viable and unique alternative to THE burial of nuclear waste. www.radiation.org

In 1979, the late Dr. Radha Roy, professor of physics emeritus, University Of Arizona, announced to the press that he had invented a new method to render all radioactive waste elements, including plutonium, into non-radioactive elements. This theoretical breakthrough is known as The Roy Process.

With the Roy Process, high level nuclear waste can be neutralized and totally eliminated at each reactor site, where the waste is now stored in cooling ponds. When treated with the Roy Process, these unstable radioactive isotopes rapidly decay into stable, non-radioactive elements creating heat in the process which can be used to generate steam to power existing electric generators.

This promising new science does not, in any way, make nuclear power a safe or a clean technology. Dr. Roy was outspokenly against nuclear power for scientific and health reasons. The material on this website provides a brief description of the Roy Process which was first announced in the Arizona Republic, November, 29, 1979, and general information about the nuclear industry and citizen efforts to change U.S. Government plans for underground storage of radio active waste.

Politics has kept this important new technology in limbo for twenty years. I hope this web site will foster change for the sake of (LIFE ON THE PLANET IN OUR TIME AND FOR ALL FUTURE GENERATIONS).

Commentary...

by Patrick Desplace

Greetings to one and all...

By the time you receive this commentary, it will be out of date! Everything is happening so fast, so I will try to write it for the next few weeks rather than for now.

A reprieve?

As you should be aware, we had a short reprieve from the sun – or did we? Although we did not have spectacular plasma ejaculation or Electromagnetic flares towards earth, the sun has been active and has influenced us significantly.

I have passed on to our Editor several documents that she may have decided to include in this issue (see Current Events). It is important to note that the scientific community is demonstrating unprecedented “humility” by simply admitting what they thought about the Universe, the World, the weather etc. is being severely challenged!

You have heard me say often enough that whenever science reaches a new plateau of understanding, it finds there the Mystics, Occultists or Shamans of the Ages who knew about it all along!

Solar activity impact...

The rather gentler Solar activities are having very significant impact on the psyche of humans and on the behaviour of the weather patterns of our World. You must be aware of the devastating effects of Major Storms & Tornadoes; the devastating flooding and the significant Earthquakes in unusual places. There is now greater awareness of the seriousness of imminent risk regions that are more prone to Techtronic instability.

It has now been found that Radioactive decay, always thought to be a universal constant is not constant at all, but severely affected by Solar activity... probably the accuracy of “The Atomic Clock” is in dire need of being re-assessed!

Our Editor has been able to pass on the video clip of a comet hitting the sun (see Current Events), you will have noticed the effect of the impact – it cannot be explained and is declared to be a coincidence! Bullshit...

I hope you are visiting www.spaceweather.com and you have subscribed to www.earthchangesmedia.com. You will receive rather significant and sound information from both these sources.

Asteroid 2005 YU55 and Comet Elenin

You will have read the report of a “Minor Comet” and a significant Asteroid heading our way (see Current Events). The comet is expected to pass on the other side of the Sun from us, however the Asteroid is expected to squeeze between us and the Sun in November 2011! It is large enough to eliminate $\frac{2}{3}$ of the world’s population and give us a new Ice Age should it visit us “intimately”.

On the Political Scene, Osama Bin Laden has been “executed”. As far as I am concerned it was an execution – serves him right – he got complacent. I believe that after some minor retaliation, his network will simply disintegrate... good.

Upcoming World Tour...

As many of you are aware I am undertaking a world tour from early June to late August... I will be offering “Wow – What a beautiful World” in Cape Town, Johannesburg, London and Paris (brochure attached).

An introductory version of this program has been offered in South Australia... the residential part starts next weekend. The "Second Chance" MP3 option is available from Nina.

Have I overdone it? Plasma blast from the sun is being re-absorbed instead of heading our way... all I want is to be able to complete my international work and make it back to OZ safely before September!

Ciril is having a chuckle...

My Love to you always
